

Neutrino Physics: Status and Perspectives

Thursday, August 30, 2018 10:00 AM (0:30)

Abstract content

We discuss the current status of theoretical and experimental neutrino physics, focusing on ways in which neutrinos can help to answer some of the most fundamental questions in particle physics and astrophysics. Topics covered include neutrino oscillations, neutrino masses, neutrino astronomy, and connections between the neutrino sector and dark matter.

Primary author(s) : KOPP, Joachim (University of Mainz & CERN)

Presenter(s) : KOPP, Joachim (University of Mainz & CERN)

Session Classification : Particle Physics

Track Classification : Plenary